EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Credentials in North Carolina Secondary Career and Technical Education (CTE)

Industry certifications and credentials are offered through multiple CTE courses. Credentials recognized by NC CTE are a valid proof of learning typically endorsed by business and industry partners and provide documentation for student mastery of skills required for employment and advancement in a career.

North Carolina CTE experienced a steady increase in credential attainment between academic years 2010-2011 and 2018-2019; however, a two-year decline began in Spring 2020 and can be directly related to three distinct factors.

- The COVID-19 pandemic negatively impacted credential administration and reporting.
- The new Strengthening Career and Technical Education for the 21st Century Act (Perkins V) required pathway realignments with a more focused definition of recognized credentials.
- The exclusion of ACT WorkKeys® credentials in the total count of credentials reduced the overall attainment count. Only credentials aligned to CTE courses are included in the attainment data. However, ACT WorkKeys® data is provided separately in the report.

The trend has shifted to consistent increases since the 2020-2021 school year. The 2023-2024 academic year saw 358,069 individual credentials earned and reported statewide, which represents the highest attainment over the 14 years NC CTE has collected and reported industry-recognized credentials.

Credential Potential

During the 2021-2022 academic year, NC CTE initiated a transition to the concept of Credential Potential. Credential Potential is the total number of credentials available to students in a Public School Unit (PSU). PSU CTE leadership is encouraged to establish a goal for the percentage of the PSU Credential Potential to achieve each year. Many factors impact a PSU's possible Credential Potential attainment.

- Courses that offer multiple credentials for the same content, such as Career Management, will reasonably only see attainment with one of the available credentials,
- Credentials that are in the process of being implemented for the first time in a PSU may see lower attainment until fully implemented, and
- Students who take a course over multiple semesters typically attempt the credential during the last portion of the course.

Data Collection

Educators and business and industry representatives recommend credentials each year that are aligned to the CTE curriculum and valued by employers. Proposed credentials are researched to ensure they meet requirements for reporting.

Credential attainment data was collected for each student and matched to enrollment information. Much of the NC CTE credential attainment data was collected directly from the credentialing agency. Additional results were collected from students using third-party software. Care was taken to protect the confidentiality of student information during the collection and analysis process.

INTRODUCTION

Of adults ages 25 and older, 41% have no more than a high school education, contributing to the talent shortage across multiple industries in the United States (Hawkins, 2019). Career pathways through CTE programs should include options for dual-enrollment, work-based learning and credentialing (Meeder, 2016). Industry-recognized credentials are of utmost importance today, providing labor market currency and serving as opportunities for economic momentum for high school students, especially for underserved students (Education Strategy Group et al., 2018). Reforms to state policies are aimed at increasing the number of students earning credentials and certificates, at both the high school and community college level (Guth, 2017). High-quality CTE programs include qualified educators with strong understanding of industry trends, work-site learning experiences for students, and student access to industry-recognized credentialing opportunities (Gordo & Shultz, 2020). The benefits of students earning industry-recognized credentials includes aspects impacting the students, businesses and communities. For students, industry-recognized credentials offer long-term financial benefits through increased wages and long-term earnings (Dougherty, 2018).

Additionally, benefits to students go beyond monetary impact and include positive increases in psychological characteristics, such as increased feelings of self-worth (Dougherty, 2018). Students who earn industry-recognized credentials build capacity for the completion of tasks and develop a relational connection between an investment of time and work to positive outcomes. For businesses that hire credentialed students, the benefits include reductions in on-the-job training costs and employees with value-added skill sets (Fletcher & Tyson, 2017). When students enter the workforce with industry-recognized credentials, businesses save the resources of time and money needed to provide credentials to new employees. For communities, positive credentialing data communicates a value in workforce skills and contributes to the economic well-being of the community by drawing future industries to the area (Education Strategy Group et al., 2018).

For this report, industry-recognized credentials are industry credentials that serve as validations of qualifications demonstrated by individuals and are used to verify specific technical competencies or capabilities aligned to industry needs (Murawski, 2019). A credential can be based on a written, oral or performance-based examination, or a combination of the three, and may require supervised work-based learning experience in addition to successfully passing the credentialing exam. Credentials differ from licenses, which are generally issued by a governmental entity. Licenses frequently are required for a practitioner to enter a field, while credentials help potential employees get hired or qualify them for a higher pay level but are not legally mandated.

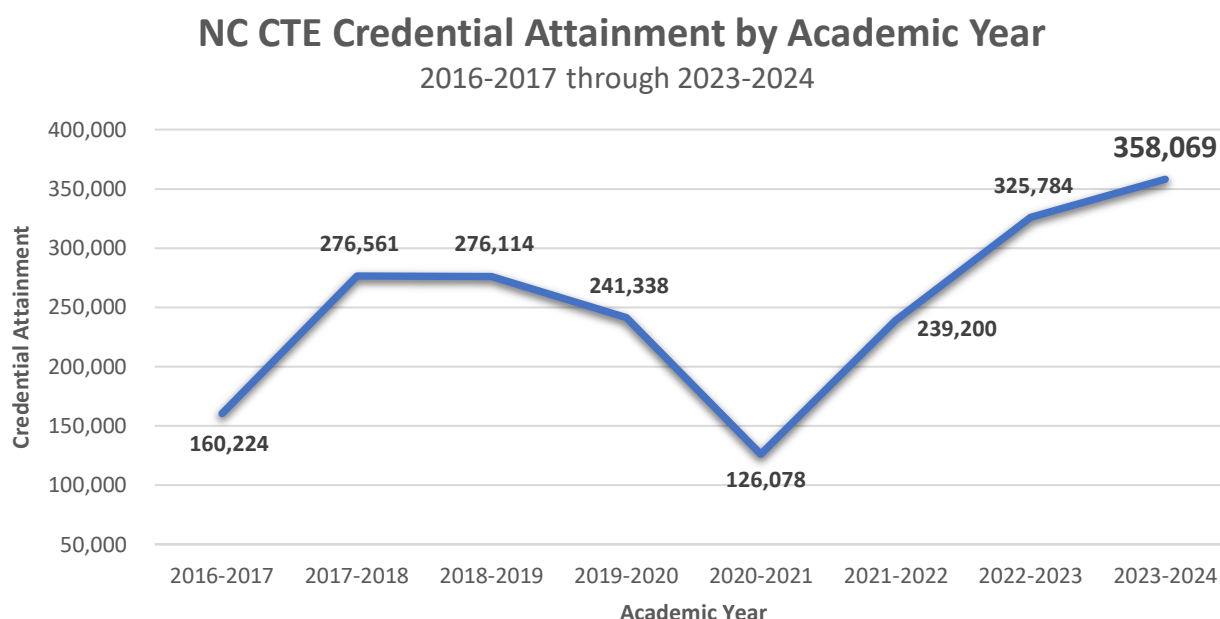

Credential Trend Data

Across North Carolina, CTE students have earned and reported 2,609,867 credentials since the 2010-2011 academic year. Of that number, 358,069 credentials were earned and reported during the 2023-2024 academic school year. The chart below depicts the trend data from the 2016-2017 academic year through the 2023-2024 academic year.

- The sharp increase in credentials reported from 2016-2017 to 2017-2018 is attributed to the reporting of individual credentials in courses with combined credentials.

- The slight decrease in credentials reported from 2018-2019 to 2019-2020 is attributed to the initial impact of COVID-19 and the transition to virtual instruction in March 2020.
- The decrease in credentials reported during 2020-2021 is attributed to the continued impact of COVID-19 and virtual instruction, the realignment of pathways and credentials due to changes associated with the Strengthening Career and Technical Education for the 21st Century Act (Perkins V), and the decision to no longer include ACT WorkKeys® results in the overall credential attainment number. ACT WorkKeys® results are reported through the Office of Accountability and Testing. While ACT WorkKeys® is an important Career Readiness Credential offered to CTE Concentrators, it is not aligned to a specific CTE course. Beginning with the 2020-2021 academic year, all individual credentials reported are aligned with NC CTE courses.
- The increase in credentials reported in the 2021-2022 school year is attributed to the return to in-person instruction as a transition through COVID-19 and increased credential funding provided by the North Carolina General Assembly
 - In 2020-2021 and prior years, local districts received approximately 10% of the needed funding to offer all students credentialing opportunities.
 - In 2021-2022, funding increased to accommodate approximately 43% of the funding needed to offer all students the opportunity to earn credentials aligned to their CTE courses.
 - During the 2022-2023 academic year, funding increased again, reaching $15.8 million, and local districts were funded over 98% of the needed amount to offer all students the opportunity to earn credentials aligned to their CTE courses. As a result, 41% of available credentials were earned and reported, which is an increase of 13 percentage points from the 28% credential attainment achieved in 2021-2022.
 - Funding during the 2023-2024 academic year remained at $15.8 million, and local districts were funded 100% of the needed amount to offer all students the opportunity to earn credentials aligned to their CTE courses. With continued funding from the North Carolina General Assembly and an increased focus on credential attainment by local CTE leadership, NC CTE students achieved an all-time high of 358,069 credentials earned and reported (53% of available credentials).

STATEWIDE RESULTS

Overview

During the 2023-2024 academic year, 363 different individual credentials measuring workplace readiness skills or proficiency in career-specific skills were available to students across North Carolina. Credentials related to workplace readiness skills represent general job skills applicable to many different careers such as Microsoft Office Specialist (MOS) certifications in MOS Word, MOS Excel, MOS PowerPoint, and MOS Access. Examples of credentials that are indicative of career-specific skills include the North Carolina Nurse Aide certificate and the Certified Veterinary Assistant certificate.

Individual Credentials and Combined Credentials

Credentials are reported in two distinct categories, individual and combined. Individual credentials include specific modules within a more comprehensive credential. An example of individual credentials that create a combined credential is Conover Workplace Readiness which is aligned to CC45-Career Management. There are eight individual modules that each count as an individual credential and, when all eight are successfully earned, join to make a combined credential. When reporting these credentials, a student who earns the credential for all modules counts as eight individual credentials and one combined credential. During the 2023-2024 academic year, individual credentials that form combined credentials were earned in 32 CTE courses as shown in the following table.

Credential Tiers

North Carolina CTE partners with the North Carolina Department of Commerce for the assignment of tier ranking to each industry-recognized credential. Consideration is given to academic rigor, employment value and industry demand as part of the credential tier assignment process.

- Tier 1 credentials, considered foundational certifications, offer students the opportunity to experience the process of earning an industry-recognized credential and establish a starting point for earning additional, stackable credentials.
- Tier 2 credentials are springboard or door-opener certifications which are sometimes included in industry vacancy notices and potentially provide an advantage for students when seeking employment in a related career. Teachers are awarded a $25.00 bonus for each Tier 2 credential earned by students enrolled in their courses.

- Tier 3 credentials are advanced certifications which are often required for employment and used to leverage higher starting and long-term salaries for employees. Teachers are awarded a $50.00 bonus for each Tier 3 credential earned by students enrolled in their courses.

The table below shows combined credentials aligned to courses by program area and their tier classification.

Equity and Access

North Carolina CTE is committed to closing opportunity gaps across all aspects of the CTE program. Advance CTE's premise that "we have a critical responsibility to ensure that each learner has opportunities for career success and is supported in identifying and realizing their goals" is embraced across the state in the work to construct high-quality CTE programs of study. Critical to this work is data analysis to explore where gaps exist, careful reflection to identify root causes for opportunity gaps, and intentional action plan implementation to address causes that lead to opportunity gaps.

The table below shows a breakdown of credential results by multiple student groups.

- The green column reports the percentage of students in CTE courses with credential opportunities from each student group and is used as the comparison data.
- Data points highlighted in orange are student groups with an underrepresentation of 10 or more percentage points when compared to the comparison data.
- Data points highlighted in blue are student groups with an overrepresentation of 10 or more percentage points when compared to the comparison data.

Observations

- Female students are underrepresented in CTE enrollment with credential opportunities by 10 percentage points compared to all NC CTE enrollment. Likewise, male students are overrepresented in CTE enrollment with credential opportunities by 10 percentage points. The gaps in credential attainment described below could be attributed to the opportunity gaps in CTE enrollment with credential opportunities for female and male students.

- Female students are overrepresented in Tier 1 credential attainment by 14 percentage points while male students are underrepresented in Tier 1 credential attainment by 14 percentage points.
- Female students are underrepresented in Tier 2 credential attainment by 18 percentage points while male students are overrepresented in Tier 2 credential attainment by 18 percentage points.
- Black students are underrepresented in Tier 2 credential attainment by 10 percentage points.
- Students who are economically disadvantaged are underrepresented in Tier 3 credential attainment by 20 percentage points.

Trend Data

North Carolina CTE monitors data to identify trends over time. The last three years have shown that opportunity gaps in Tier 2 credentials persist with an underrepresentation of female students earning those credentials of value. However, the percentage of Tier 3 credentials being earned by female students has increased over the three-year window and reached the expected value to mirror the comparison population during the 2023-2024 academic year. Similarly, opportunity gaps across racial groups have continued to improve over the same window of time.

The table below outlines credential attainment trend data by student group over the last three years.

Stackable Credentials

Stackable credentials provide a method of supporting the incremental building of work skills and are designed to maximize skill acquisition while enabling seamless transitions to careers (Murawski, 2019). Benefits of stackable credentials are best realized when the credentials are aligned to structured and well-designed career pathways that progress through the curriculum and build a resumé of portable skills and competencies needed in the labor market (Giani & Fox, 2017). As an example, CTE students in North Carolina have an opportunity to stack credentials in health sciences by earning the American Red Cross First Aid certification in Health Science I; the American Heart Association certification in CPR/AED, the Occupational Safety and Health Association (OSHA) Healthcare certification, and the American Red Cross Stop the Bleed certification in Health Science II; and North Carolina Nurse Aide I in Nursing Fundamentals.

Image 1. Healthcare Professional Pathway Courses and Stackable Credentials

While multiple perspectives concerning workforce issues exist, there is agreement related to the impact of sub-baccalaureate credentials such as associate degrees, certificates and industry-recognized credentials. One point of consensus among those working to close the supply and demand gap in the labor force is the need to increase the number of potential employees holding high-quality credentials (Giani & Fox, 2017). With embedded stackable credentials aligned to pathways reflective of the community’s labor market needs, a local pipeline into a broad range of professions can be provided by CTE programs (Reader et al., 2021).

CAREER READINESS CREDENTIALS AND DURABLE SKILLS

North Carolina recognizes four specific credentials that address a student’s career readiness. Also referred to as durable skills, career readiness credentials indicate the credential holder’s competency across multiple characteristics needed for success across all careers. Three such credentials are aligned to CC45-Career Management: Conover Workplace Readiness, Microburst Learning Employers’ Choice: EmployABILITY Soft Skills for Job Success, and Express Employment Professionals Career Preparedness Certification. These credentials measure knowledge in areas such as social media and the workplace, attitude, critical thinking and acceptable workplace behaviors.

The fourth career readiness credential is the ACT WorkKeys®. While not aligned with any one CTE course, this assessment is used to measure student employability skills in three areas: Applied Mathematics, Graphic Literacy and Workplace Documents. The ACT WorkKeys® assessment is administered to CTE concentrators in their anticipated graduation year. CTE concentrators are students who successfully complete a second- or third-level course that builds upon skills acquired in a prerequisite course or courses.

Test-takers who reach benchmark scores on the ACT WorkKeys® assessment receive a National Career Readiness Certificate™ (NCRC™), which is available at four levels: Platinum, Gold, Silver and Bronze. Employers use the NCRC™ as a screening tool when hiring to improve the quality of their workforce and to help potential employees understand the level of performance necessary to be successful in a career field.

ACT WorkKeys® National Career Readiness Credential Attainment

- In 2021-2022, over 37,000 students participated in the ACT WorkKeys® assessment administration and 70% of those students earned a National Career Readiness Certificate of Silver or above.
- In 2022-2023, over 41,000 students participated in the ACT WorkKeys® assessment administration and 70% of those students earned a National Career Readiness Certificate of Silver or above.
- In 2023-2024, over 43,000 students participated in the ACT WorkKeys® assessment administration and 68% of those students earned a National Career Readiness Certificate of Silver or above.

CONNECTION TO NC WORKFORCE CREDENTIALS

Many credentials earned by NC CTE secondary students are identified by the NC Workforce Credentials (NCWFC) partners as “priority non-degree credentials that are valued by employers and put those who earn them on a path to a sustainable wage career” (NC Careers). The table below highlights the credential attainment by NC CTE students across the credentials offered in high school courses and identified by the NCWFC. Additionally, the PSU with the highest attainment is displayed. Three important data points are listed below.

- For the 2023-2024 academic year, NC CTE students earned 69,746 industry-recognized credentials that are aligned to the NCWFC credential list. This number represents an increase of 17.8% over the 59,199 NCWFC credentials earned by NC CTE students in 2022-2023.
- NC CTE offers 72 of the approximately 165 NCWFC credentials and reported earned credentials across 70 of those credentials.
- Of the 191,565 combined credentials earned by NC CTE students, 36.3% (69,552) are credentials from the NCWFC list.

STATEWIDE CREDENTIAL RESULTS

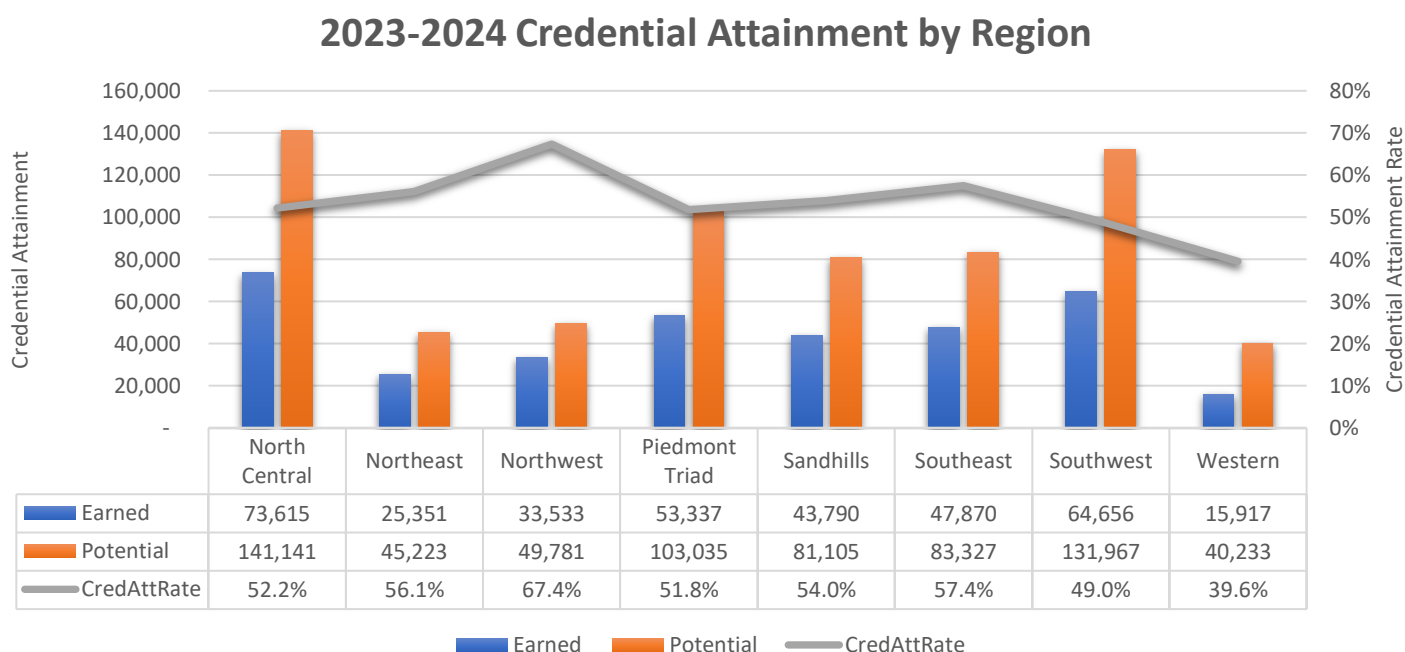

Credentials earned and reported by students during the 2023-2024 academic year can be examined by region, by PSU, and by course-credential. Statewide results include the number of credentials earned, total number of credentials available (credential potential), and attainment rate.

Statewide Regional Results

The following chart shows the earned credentials, credential potential and credential attainment rate by region.

- The highest number of earned credentials by region was 73,615 in the North Central Region. (For 2022-2023, the highest number of earned credentials by region was 68,330 in the North Central Region.)
- The highest credential attainment rate by region was 67% in the Northwest Region. (For 2022-2023, the highest credential attainment rate by region was 55% in the Northwest Region.)
- All regions reported a credential attainment rate between 39% and 67%. (For 2022-2023, the credential attainment rate ranged between 30% and 55%.)
- The statewide credential attainment rate for 2023-2024 was 53%, which is an increase of 12 percentage points over the previous year. (For 2022-2023, the statewide credential attainment rate was 41%, which was an increase of nearly 13 percentage points over the previous year.)

Chart 3. Credential Attainment by Region

Public School Unit Results Overview

Students in 154 Public School Units (PSUs), including 115 traditional and 39 charter and specialty schools, had the opportunity to earn credentials in the 2023-2024 academic year. The following charts highlight the top ten PSUs based on the number of individual credentials earned and individual credential attainment rate. The comparison of credential attainment rate, or credential potential, creates a consistent analysis point by comparing the available credentials to the earned credentials in each PSU. The three-year comparison data indicates that the additional funding, focus on intentional credentialing of students, and attention to credential potential attainment rate has yielded tremendous results in credential attainment across multiple PSUs.

STRATEGIC PLANNING FOR CREDENTIAL ATTAINMENT IMPROVEMENT

Based on research, best practices for improving credential attainment include the following strategies.

1. Creating a clear communication plan. Providing clear, credible information that communicates career, postsecondary education and economic benefits is a priority for improving credential opportunities and attainment (Education Strategy Group et al., 2018). Reeves (2009) shared that the role of leadership of an organization is to communicate the essential message of change. CTE leadership should develop an intentional communication plan to share with stakeholders the benefits and importance of high school students earning industry-recognized credentials. Networks of teachers, administrators, counselors, industry partners and community organizations should be formed to help deliver and perpetuate the message of credentialing throughout the school community. Any efforts to improve credential attainment will be less effective without community involvement and engagement.
2. Forming CTE/counseling collaborative teams. According to Rosen and Milano (2019), the need exists across secondary education for better advising to explain immediate and long-term benefits for specific opportunities to students as they make decisions that impact their futures. A major challenge for access in high-quality CTE and related to counseling and advising is the information available to students and parents. School counselors influence which students receive messages about specific opportunities and need to have the most up-to-date information about what is available and which courses form pathways aligned to industry-recognized credentials (Rosen & Milano, 2019). Establishing CTE/counseling collaborative teams should allow CTE leadership and school counselors to regularly communicate regarding opportunities available to students through CTE, pathways and courses, and postsecondary paths open to students based on CTE experiences in high school. Additionally, CTE leadership and school counselors will be able to collaborate on the creation of program marketing and recruitment tools to help share opportunities with students and parents. Creating and using resources to distribute messages about CTE opportunities equitably and widely is important to improving credential attainment and should be an aim of the CTE/counseling collaborative teams (Rosen & Molina, 2019).
3. Identifying high-quality industry-recognized credentials and intentionally aligning those credentials to CTE pathways. By delineating between low-value and high-value credentials, students can make wise choices about which credentials to earn for the greatest long-term impact. The process to identify high-value credentials includes identifying occupations that are high-skill and high-wage and then connecting the associated credentials to include in high school programming (Mathers, 2018). Establishing high-quality credentials requires industry and education leaders to come together and collaborate, determining which credentials are valuable and where the credentials align to the curriculum. When respected industry leaders and organizations unite to establish and promote high-quality credentials, others are motivated to get involved in the work of credentialing students (Rimland & Raish, 2019). Three intentional actions are suggested to propel the work of identifying high-quality credentials and include

- a. building stronger employer use of credentialing through job postings, higher wages for high-quality credentials, and the utilization of common credentials across an industry sector;
- b. identifying credentials aligned to postsecondary education and training to potential credit for students with college-level course hours in core areas; and
- c. building a crosswalk of prioritized industry-recognized credentials that span both the education system and the workforce system (Education Strategy Group et al., 2018).

State education leaders, business and industry executives, and community workforce development agencies have power to produce improvement in credentialing efforts when united in the implementation of these strategies (Education Strategy Group et al., 2018).

CONCLUSION

The positive trend in credential attainment beginning with the 2021-2022 academic year has continued through the 2023-2024 academic year with 53% of available credentials being earned by students across the state. NC CTE is committed to continuous improvement by creating expanded opportunities for students to earn credentials, while supporting PSU leaders and teachers to make the industry-recognized credentials of value available across the state.

North Carolina CTE priorities for improving the secondary credentialing efforts include the following actions.

- Incorporating credentialing information with the newly legislated Career Development Plans as a best practice.
- Enhancing the CTE data and information portal, NCCTE Admin, with an electronic, searchable Credential Directory.
- Continuing to improve the process for vetting and approving new credentials, while focusing on an alignment to the NC Workforce credentials of value.
- Supporting PSUs in the implementation of existing credential opportunities. A dedicated Special Populations Consultant will provide additional support for PSUs in addressing equity in CTE and, therefore, credential opportunities.
- Continuing to increase the efficiency and accuracy in the process for collecting and reporting earned credentials.
- Continuing to support PSUs to interpret and utilize credential data. Through an Opportunity Gap Analysis Workshop, PSUs will learn to implement data analysis and improvement planning that involves a cyclical approach of gathering data, identifying gaps, exploring root causes, and developing and implementing action plans to close opportunity gaps.
- Developing a NCCTE Data Dashboard to assist PSUs with data analysis to identify gaps and missed opportunities to credential students.
