Quest #	Vendor Questions	State Response
9	Are the needed PDF's of all print components needed for the electronic submission and physical submission of samples?	For electronic submissions, publishers may provide the requested print materials as a PDF which opens in Adobe, in a digital form akin to an eBook, or in any other electronic format that does not require the recipient to create an account to review the materials, so long as the electronic version of the print materials provided is complete and has the same format and content as the print version. Links and/or access information for all electronic materials must be provided. For the official DPI bid samples and the review process (if in-person), print materials must be submitted in print. See pages 7, 16 and 17 of the 2022 Invitation.
10	Are PDF files required for every student reader (classroom library)?	Electronic files are required for all print materials and print components included in a bid submission. Publishers may provide the requested print materials as a PDF which opens in Adobe, in a digital form akin to an eBook, or in any other electronic format that does not require the recipient to create an account to review the materials, so long as the electronic version of the print materials provided is complete and has the same format and content as the print version. Links and/or access information for all electronic materials must be provided.
39	Due to printer availability, we are not able to print, bind, and deliver the Teacher Guides in final form by the May 16th due date. The content is final and complete and will be submitted digitally through the portal. The printing industry is experiencing shortages of paper ink and press time causing unprecedented delays. May we print, bind, and deliver the Teacher Guides in a form that is less than final for the review process?	For the official DPI bid samples and the review process (if in-person), it would be acceptable to print and bind the samples as long as the content is complete and the samples are labeled per the instructions in the 2022 Invitation. If the item is approved, a final bound copy must be submitted to the textbook warehouse.
45	Are we able to submit access to our ebook/digital resource platform instead of a PDF for submission? (Including explicit instructions on how to access and a "sandbox account" that could be used by anyone needing access to review). The ebooks on the platform follow the same page numbers and general layout of print books and are the exact same content, but have specific ebook functionality (e.g. annotation tools, search functions, etc.).	Publishers may provide the requested print materials as a PDF which opens in Adobe, in a digital form akin to an eBook, or in any other electronic format that does not require the recipient to create an account to review the materials, as long as the electronic version of the print materials provided is complete and has the same format and content as the print version. Links and/or access information for all electronic materials must be provided.
